MIMBRES MESSENGER

The Coronavirus (Covid-19) is Changing Life as We Know It
Stay Home - Save Lives

Call it "A Stay-at-Home Order", or a "Lockdown", or a "Shelter in Place" order, it basically comes down to the same thing.

On Monday, March 23rd, the New Mexico Governor announced a Stay-at-home order for New Mexico. What exactly does that mean?

From the New Mexico Department of Health Website, here are the answers to most of your questions.

March 23 Public Health Order: FAQs

On March 23, 2020, New Mexico Department of Health Secretary Kathy Kunkel announced a new public health emergency order effective at 8 a.m. Tuesday, March 24, closing all businesses and nonprofit entities except for those deemed essential, and further restricting mass gatherings due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

All New Mexicans must immediately heed the directive to stay home except to maintain continuity of functions critical to public health and safety.

BASICS

Q: When should I leave my house?

A: You may leave your home for these reasons:

If you work for an "essential business,"

If your job is part of essential government services that cannot be conducted through telework (the latest order does not change this),

To conduct "necessary activities" – obtaining medicine or seeing a doctor, purchasing necessary supplies such as groceries and personal hygiene products, picking up educational supplies from your child's school or providing necessary care and supplies to family members in another household,

You may leave your house to take a walk, or jog, or to walk the dog. But you may not do these things in groups. And you should limit your time outside to only what is essential.

Q: What's open?

- ◆ A: Essential businesses and nonprofits, as defined in the order, will remain open. These include:
- ◆ Gas stations
- ◆ Pharmacies
- ◆ Food providers: Grocery stores, farmers' markets, food banks, convenience stores, school meal distribution sites and restaurants (but only for delivery and take-out).
- ◆ Banks
- ◆ Laundromats/laundry services
- ◆ Farms, ranches and other food cultivation operations
- ◆ Essential state and local government functions, including law enforcement and emergency management services
- ◆ Homeless shelters
- ◆ Health care operations
- ◆ Childcare facilities necessary to provide services to workers employed by essential businesses and essential non-profit entities.
- ◆ Utilities
- ◆ Essential state and local government functions, including law enforcement and emergency management services
- ◆ U.S. government and military installations
- ◆ The full list is available at <https://cv.nmhealth.org/stay-at-home-essential-businesses/>

Q: Are there additional closings because of this order?

A: Yes. If a business does not fall under one of the "essential" categories, employees must either telework or the business must suspend operations.

Q: The new order revises what's considered a prohibited mass gathering. What's the new rule?

A: This order defines a mass gathering as any public or private gathering that brings together five or more indi-

LETTER FROM THE EDITOR By Mary Willhite

When I first started thinking about starting this edition of the Messenger, I wasn't even considering doing anything on the Coronavirus. But in one week, that is all everyone is talking about.

There is a lot of different information (true, conflicting, misleading, or false) floating around. The front page of the Messenger is from the New Mexico Department of Health, so it is the best we can do to be accurate.

When I first started paying attention, there were less than 50 cases of Covid-19 reported in New Mexico. As of today, there were more than 200 reported cases and the US has taken the lead in the number of cases. I was hoping that New Mexico would be a state that reported zero deaths from the virus, but unfortunately, that is not the case. As of this writing, 7,793 tests have been administered in New Mexico with 112 reported positive.

Thankfully, as of now, Grant County has been spared. Let's keep it that way! Follow the stay-at-home order. Protect yourself and others. If you must go out, practice Social Distancing. Wash and sanitize your hands. Clean and disinfect frequently touched surfaces. Don't go "visiting," and call your elderly friends and neighbors and make sure they are doing well.

I am happy I live in a state that is taking the pandemic seriously and is being proactive rather than reactive. This is one time that I am happy that New Mexico ranks in the lower percentile!

On a lighter note, what is this with the toilet paper? It certainly isn't something that I would think to hoard. But just in case you don't have enough, I am sending this bouquet along to you.

If this is not going to be enough, my friend sent along the following just in case you should need the information.

viduals in a single room or connected space or an outdoor space where people are within 6 feet of each other.

Q: Are there any exemptions to the 5-or-more rule?

A: Yes. If five or more people live together, they are exempt inside their residence. Also exempt are churches, synagogues, mosques or other places of worship.

Q: What's closed?

- ◆ Entertainment venues
- ◆ Gyms and fitness studios
- ◆ Public events and gatherings
- ◆ Convention centers
- ◆ Hair and nail salons
- ◆ Casinos and horse-racing facilities
- ◆ And more

Q: How long will this order be in place?

A: This order is in place through 8 a.m. April 10, 2020, unless otherwise amended.

Q: What about government services?

A: This order does not change the status of state and local government operations. Previous orders exempted all persons necessary to maintain the operations of state and local governments. State government has already moved to a largely telework system; local government agencies are strongly encouraged to do the same.

Q: Is there a curfew associated with the order?

A: No.

Q: My employer has asked me to come to work at a non-essential business – what do I do?

A: The main line at newmexico.gov, 833-551-0518, will soon have a reporting mechanism to report non-compliance to the state.

SCHOOLS AND CHILD CARE

Q: My school is providing free grab-and-go meals, instructional materials and supplies, and childcare. Are those still open?

A: Yes.

Q: Are childcare services still open? Can my babysitter still come to the house?

A: Yes. Childcare facilities necessary to provide services to workers employed by essential businesses and nonprofit entities may continue to operate. Childcare services are also available to serve families with young children when the parents are involved with protective services, behavioral health and/or juvenile justice services. Childcare facilities that remain open must employ heightened cleaning and distancing requirements; guidance will be released shortly. Babysitters may travel to homes to care for the children of parents working in essential sectors.

OTHER SERVICES

Q: Can I go to the park?

A: No, you should not. (Most are closed anyway.)

Q: Will public roads be closed?

A: No. All streets, roads and highways will remain open.

Q: What about public transportation?

A: Public transportation is considered an essential service; it will continue to operate.

Q: How does the order affect people who are homeless?

A: Previous orders exempted those who are homeless, and that has not changed. Like everyone, they are encouraged to practice social distancing of at least 6 feet. Services that provide for the homeless, like shelters, may remain open.

Q: Can I still get my mail and deliveries?

A: Yes. You will still be able to get mail and other deliveries at your home. Mail is considered an essential government function, and businesses that deliver goods or services directly to residences are considered essential businesses.

HEALTH CARE AND HELPING SICK RELATIVES

Q: Can I visit loved ones in the hospital, nursing home, skilled nursing facility, or other residential care facility?

A: The Department of Health's March 13, 2020, public health order states that visitors are only allowed at nursing homes and other facilities that care for seniors if they are receiving end-of-life care and the visitor meets certain conditions (i.e. temperature taken at the entrance). Many hospitals are implementing modified visitation policies at this time. Check with the specific hospital location about what the policy is at this time.

Q: Since health care is a necessary activity, may I keep my appointment for an eye exam or a dental cleaning?

A: Non-essential medical care like eye exams, teeth cleaning and elective procedures should be postponed. If possible, health care visits should be done remotely.

Q: May I still go out to get my prescriptions?

A: Yes. Pharmacies remain open, as do medical marijuana dispensaries.

Q: Can I leave home to care for family members or friends who have disabilities, or who require assistance to care for themselves?

A: Yes. Be sure that you protect them and yourself by following social distancing guidelines such as washing hands before and after, using hand sanitizer, maintaining at least 6 feet of distance when possible, and coughing or sneezing into your elbow or a tissue and then washing your hands. If you have any symptoms of a cold, however, please stay away.

OUTDOOR/RECREATION/EXERCISE

Q: Can I still go outside for a hike or walk?

Yes, but you must maintain a distance of at least 6 feet with those outside of your family unit. Gyms, fitness centers, recreational centers, golf courses, swimming pools and skating rinks are all closed. New Mexico State Parks have been temporarily closed to protect public health.

PETS

Q: Can I walk my dog? Take my pet to the vet?

A: You may walk your dog. You may also take your pet to the vet; emergency veterinary services are exempt from the orders.

Covid-19 can spread so easily. You can be infecting people when you don't feel sick or have any symptoms. It is believed the incubation period of the virus is between 2 and 14 days with the average being 5 days. Some research shows that on rare occasions, people can pass the coronavirus to others without ever becoming ill. One woman from Wuhan spread the virus to five of her family members without showing symptoms. According to the CDC, 392 of the 705 passengers who tested positive on the Diamond Princess cruise ship were asymptomatic.

This is a visual example of the number of people that could be infected in only 7 days from one infected person. If each infected person only transmitted the disease to one other person per day, This is the number of people who would be infected in 7 days and show no signs of the virus.

Creating Spiritual Transformation on 4/22/2020

Currently, many living beings are experiencing extreme difficulties. In order not to feel powerless during these stressful times, let us all use our mind and spirit to generate something compassionate.

Collectively, using the power of thought and intent, we can spiritually change the chaos happening to our planet, to heal ourselves and all around us. The power of the mind through prayer, contemplation and/or request to a greater consciousness has unlimited potential, especially when done by many people in unison.

Please, translate, hard copy, or cut and paste, and send this message to as many like-minded persons as possible, remembering the ones in remote and foreign countries, so that we can achieve cohesion for this project all over the world.

Together, on the 50th Earth Day, Wednesday April 22, 2020, let us pray, meditate, or simply wish "Peace, Health, Love and Light to all Living Beings".

We can all work in harmony by focusing our spiritual energy, offering positive thoughts throughout this special day, as often as we can.

Love and Light to All,
From a friend of the Earth

STINK BEETLES By "The Bugman"

While strolling down a dirt road, have you ever encountered a large black beetle doing a headstand? If so, it's a darkling beetle, sometimes referred to as a pinacate beetle or clown beetle. The common ones in the valley are about 1-1.5" long, and all black. Their forewings are fused together so they cannot fly. Why, you may ask, is that big black bug sticking its butt up in the air at me? Well, it has to do with another one of its common names, stink beetle. The insect is assuming a defensive posture in preparation for emitting a nasty smelling odor from glands in its abdomen. The emitted chemicals are irritating to the eyes and mouths of mice, toads, lizards and other potential predators. Interestingly, grasshopper mice have acquired a successful strategy for dealing with stink beetles by picking them up, planting them butt first in the ground and consuming them from the head, thereby evading the foul flatulence.

There are many species of stink beetles, with at least 30 occurring in New Mexico, all of which belong to the genus Eleodes. Not all species of Eleodes emit defensive chemicals, and some perform the threatening headstand behavior, but produce no chemicals. These species are simply mimicking those that produce noxious emissions in order to fool predators into assuming that they can release a nasty discharge. If you are unsure whether a given stink beetle can produce a stinky emission, hold it near your nose and you'll soon have an answer!

The stink beetles in New Mexico are scavengers, feeding primarily on decaying vegetation during both their immature (larval) and adult stages. However, some species in the Midwest are considered pests of wheat during their larval stages due to their consumption of sown seeds, roots and underground stems. Stink beetles can be kept in a terrarium as pets and will eat just about any vegetable matter (apple cores, old lettuce, etc.), although they reportedly thrive on oatmeal. They can live several years, and eventually cease spraying once they've become accustomed to gentle handling.

Hi everyone and hope you're well and staying safe with the health situation we find ourselves in!

I've been in some very recent meetings (not in person!) where the guidelines were discussed and yes they change but here's the most current, broad advice:

FIRST - if you have any COVID19 questions call the 24/7 Department of Health Hotline which is 1-833-551-0518

Health related Covid-19 questions call 1-855-600-3453

Senior Food Line call 1-800-432-2080

SECOND - Pay attention to the guidelines we're all aware of now, it's so important to follow the healthcare professionals advice!

THIRD - As far as using masks, PLEASE keep in mind that masks are for people who are sick and/or those who's doctor has ordered one. I know we're seeing shots of people all over the world walking around outside wearing masks.

RIGHT NOW, unless you meet the criteria above , masks are for those people only. Not being actively sick w/the virus and wearing a mask does not protect you from someone who may be actively sick that you come in contact with...keep the 6 ft distance, wash and disinfect your hands, wipe down surfaces, etc.. If you are out and about with a mask on, don't be surprised if someone (like me) may ask you if you are sick and suggest you not be out in public right now.

OUR HEALTHCARE PROFESSIONALS need all of the masks and other personal protective equipment they can find and we should help that happen. They are there for us, let's be there for them too.

The uncertainty is sure real but if we listen to the healthcare professionals and trust their guidance, take care for ourselves and each other, we will get through this.

Best,
Chris DeBolt

Why Not Plant an Isolation Victory Garden?

By Valerie McCaffrey

If there was ever a time to plant a garden, it is right now, when many of us have landed at home, in self-isolation, with time on our hands, and perhaps some fear in our hearts. There may be food shortages due to the long supply chain to get things here. So far, frozen chicken, toilet paper and paper towels, hand sanitizer and masks have disappeared from grocery stores in Silver City.

Remember hearing about the victory gardens during World War II, when citizens raised forty percent of the produce eaten in this country? Once again, we can participate in growing some of the food we eat and help rebuild our community and our country, one vegetable garden at a time.

Why not be prepared, with a bounty of the fruits of the earth, so there will be plenty for all? It will give us the opportunity, later this summer and fall, months from now, when hopefully things are getting back to normal, to eat and cook with the most nutritious and tasty produce. We will also be able to give it to friends and family and be generous to others.

Meanwhile, growing food will give us something positive to focus on. Working the land to raise a garden, not only slows your life down to the earth's and the plants' speed, as you tend them, but it gives you something to look forward to every day. Once I step into my garden, I get so involved, marveling at the daily changes and absorbed in tasks, that the rest of the world and all my worries fade away.

Then the celebration that comes with the abundance of harvest. Cooking with your own or a neighbor's just-picked vegetables and fruits creates the healthiest and most comforting meals for your family.

We've also had a good year as far as winter and spring rains, so the soil should be easy to work. Getting our hands in the dirt is also good as far as absorbing trace amounts of good microorganisms. Personally, I am engaged in restoring my gut microbiome, damaged from a chronic autoimmune disease, by supplementing with soil-based microorganisms that are lacking in our diet. The soils of most farmlands are depleted in these micronutrients needed for a healthy gut, as they thrive under organic conditions.

Sustained contact with the earth, can also be very grounding and relaxing for human beings. Science is beginning to have equipment sensitive enough to verify that humans interact electromagnetically with the earth. The earth has north/south polarity and emits a slight electrical charge as do our hands and feet. According to the 5,000-year-old acupuncture tradition in China, humans pick up "chi" or energy from the earth through the kidney meridian in the soles of their feet.

You can also talk to your plants. According to my sister,

Dr. Gwen McCaffrey, PhD in Biochemistry, "Humans and plants share the same DNA and have many genes in common. Therefore, working in a garden is like spending time with far distant cousins."

That plants are sentient beings has been proven in trials where leaves hooked up to a galvanometer, (part of lie-detecting equipment), spiked in reaction, after "reading the mind" of the experimenter preparing to burn them. For more information, see national best-seller, "The Secret Life of Plants" by Peter Thompkins and Christopher Bird.

Planting seeds is also a hopeful thing to do. Right now, when things appear grim, why not participate with your children in one of nature's reliable miracles. Where you go from a tiny seed to a living and breathing, (plants take in carbon dioxide and give out oxygen), multi-faceted, green being. It is also good for families to work together to produce food and then cook and eat it together. "It is saying, "YES!" to life." Throughout the ages, most humans on earth have had to raise, hunt or gather all of their food.

Be sure to wait to plant outside until the danger of frost is over. Please do barricade your gardens and fruiting plants because birds, deer, javelina, gophers, and raccoons can carry off your fresh produce overnight.

For an amazing amount of on-line information go to www.aces.nmsu.edu to access New Mexico State University's horticulture publications, especially "Home Vegetable Gardening in New Mexico." Following its eight steps (know your climate, plan before you plant, prepare the soil, fertilize for optimal crop production, plant your garden, water properly, control pests and harvest at the correct time) will lead to a successful experience. Beginning gardeners can take a free, self-paced, online course, "Seed to Supper," including videos and a Facebook page, so you can ask questions, offered at www.ican.nmsu.edu.

"I think anyone with garden space, access to water and a commitment to staying home during this growing season should grow at least some of their food. If nothing else it may give you a new appreciation of those who grow your food," said long-time, local, organic farmer, Sharlene Grunerud.

She and her husband, Michael Alexander of Mimbres Farms, are one of the few farms left, that irrigate their crops directly from the Mimbres River, every 10 days, via historic "acequia" dirt ditches. One of the five, original, organic growers at the Silver City Farmers Market, Sharlene was its manager for 13 years.

This very hard working and knowledgeable couple have been vendors for years at the Mimbres Valley Farmers Market and their booth at the Harvest Festival is always chock-full of beautiful produce. They have raised plant starts in a large greenhouse for over 20 years and will offer them again this year. However, they will not be selling them at the greenhouse, only at the Spring Plant Sale on May 2 at Valle Market in Mimbres.

Pruning Fruit Trees – Advice from a Local Holistic Orchardist

You can also participate in the care and harvest of the fruit trees and berry bushes in your yard. If you're like me, you are still learning to care for them properly.

I asked local orchardist, Gabriel Feldman, if it was too late to prune fruit trees, as it is usually done by February when the trees are dormant. He said, "It is still ok to take out dead wood and crisscrossing branches. You can prune in summer but usually, you do this to keep a tree short or stunt growth."

"It is also important to sterilize pruners and saws between pruning each tree, so you don't spread fire blight and other diseases. I do this with 90% isopropyl alcohol," said Gabriel.

"In the sunny southwest, not pruning lower branches is good, as those lower branches protect the trunk from sunscald especially on stone fruits. Another sunscald solution with an extra benefit, is planting a shrub or two on the south and west sides of a fruit tree, like currant or a Nanking cherry or a nitrogen-fixer like buffalo berry," explained Gabriel. He also said it was important to avoid pruning too much here, unless you are in a shady area, as the leaves shade the trunk preventing sunscald which makes the tree susceptible to wood borers.

Long time local grower, Sharlene Grunerud of Mimbres Farms, shown in her large greenhouse watering seeds for a wide variety of plant starts that she will be offering at the Spring Plant Sale on May 2 at the Valle Market in Mimbres. Sharlene with her husband Michael Alexander have been raising seedlings to help fill out customers' gardens for 20 years.

"It's a good time to fertilize now and ideally with a foliar spray while buds are swelling and also after petal fall with leaves growing, to organically protect your tree from insects and start the biological activity," he said.

His recipe for a foliar spray using a 4-gallon sprayer is 2.5 ounces pure neem oil with a teaspoon of soap emulsifier mixed with aerated compost tea. Gabriel said he gets a lot of his information from Michael Phillip's Holistic Orchard Book and you can also read it on the author's website.

Gabriel also fertilizes around the base of his trees with compost or organic fertilizer. "Everyone should mulch with something around here, woodchips are great, or pine needles, straw, etc... just leave a couple of inches around the trunk so the mulch doesn't touch it and cause rot," he recommended.

Gabriel will be bringing his own grafted apple trees to sell at the Spring Plant Sale as well as native grasses with edible seeds, fruiting bushes and ground covers. This young grower and his wife Chelsea have the most sustainable lifestyle of anyone I know. Gabriel has a wealth of information and experience holistically cultivating native and non-native food-bearing plants.

Mimbres Agricultural Events: Spring Plant Sale, Farmers Market & Harvest Festival

According to Bill Overholt, manager of the Mimbres Valley Farmers Market, "Now that Spring has arrived, it's time to start planning your vegetable garden. Please consider planting more than you need and selling the excess at the Mimbres Valley Farmers' Market. It's a great opportunity to meet and socialize with your neighbors while making a few extra bucks!"

The farmers market will be held from 10 a.m. to noon every Saturday (August 1 through September 26) at the Valle Mimbres Market, 2739 Highway 35.

"For those who don't plan to have a garden, please support the market by purchasing the fresh locally grown produce. Don't be a bore, be a locavore," jokes Bill. He recently attended the New Mexico Farmers Market Association's yearly meeting for market managers, bringing back lots of ideas and large postcards featuring the Mimbres Valley Farmers Market's vendors and customers, as well as re-useable shopping bags with the NM farmers market logo, to give away.

Entrepreneur growers can sell produce and plants and products made from them at the Spring Plant Sale, the Mimbres Valley Farmers Market, and the Harvest Festival or via a farm stand on their property. The Mimbres Valley Harvest Festival will celebrate its 14th year at the San Lorenzo School on Saturday, October 3 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. There are no vendor fees for any of these events. Please do register as a vendor by calling the head of each particular event listed below.

At the May 2, Spring Plant Sale, six local growers, will offer lots of vegetable starts, including favorite varieties of New Mexico green chiles, as well as basil plants and herbs of all sorts, apple trees, raspberry and strawberry plants, native fruiting bushes, grasses with edible seeds and ground covers. If social distancing is still in place, measures such as limiting the number of customers allowed through the gate at one time will be in place. Please see the May edition of the Messenger for more information.

ROUNDUP LODGE NOTES

There is nothing to report this month. In March there were only a couple of private gatherings, and everything for April has been cancelled until further notice. Check the marque in front of the building for any changes.

Please Vote By Mail in the Primary Election!

The Secretary of State has set up an online request form for absentee ballots at www.nmvote.org. You can go there now, and your ballot will be mailed to you on May 5. This is also an opportunity to make sure your registration is current and accurate- Grant County purged over 2000 inactive voters last year, so please mention this to your infrequent voting friends.

AARP FREE TAX PREPARATION SERVICES HAVE BEEN CANCELLED

All services across the county have been cancelled until further notice. The Tax filing deadline for both Federal and New Mexico State Taxes has been extended until July 15th. You may call 575-519-5988 for the local hotline that will be updated every time there is something new to report. If you had an appointment and you have not had a call from anyone, your appointment is CANCELLED. We are attempting to personally call each client, but it is a big job.

FOREST SERVICE NEWS

Gila National Forest closing Developed Recreation Sites

The Gila National Forest began closing developed recreation sites and visitor restrooms this week. To keep ourselves, our communities and our outdoor spaces safe and healthy please remember to Leave No Trace.

Trash receptacles are not going to be emptied. Trash overflowing the receptacles becomes litter and can be harmful to wildlife and attract predators. Please pack all your trash out with you all the way home and dispose of it there. When you see that a restroom is closed, please do not deposit your solid wastes outside the restrooms. This practice creates a health hazard for our employees and for other visitors.

For more information on Leave No Trace and "The 7 Principles" -- <https://lnt.org/why/7-principles/>.

The Gila National Forest has begun the orderly closing of developed recreation sites to protect public health and safety and align with state and local measures already in place to contain the COVID-19 outbreak. The following sites and/or restrooms are closed in the Black Range Ranger District 575-894-6677.

- ◆ Beaverhead Picnic Area Restroom
- ◆ Restroom at CDNST Trailhead -
- ◆ NM Hwy 59 Wolf Hollow Campground
- ◆ Kingston Campground
- ◆ Emory Pass Vista Observation Site Restroom
- ◆ Restroom at Monument Park Cabin Restroom at Forest Boundary Kiosk - NM Hwy 59

Siah Correa Hemphill for Senate District 28

LEADER

My name is Siah Correa Hemphill and my roots run deep in Grant County.

I was raised in the small town of Hanover, in Grant County. My dad, from North Hurley and Bayard, was a journalist at the Silver City Daily Press, while my mom stayed home to raise me, my sister and brothers. We didn't have much, but my parents instilled in us a belief in hard work and helping our neighbors.

I have been an educator for 25 years—a career I turned to after my son was born with multiple disabilities. I'm running for the State Senate to fight for the kids who I teach, for children who are disabled, and for all of the parents who work hard to make ends meet.

In the State Senate, I will champion:

- Our kids' education—smaller classes and early education for every child
- Affordable and accessible healthcare—for everyone
- Our local small businesses so we create new job and career opportunities
- Needs of our rural communities and protecting our natural resources like water

On June 2, I'd be honored to have your support.

MIMBRES CULTURE HERITAGE SITE

By Kathy Hill

WE DID IT! Five years ago we began our funding drive for a new roof on the historic Wood House at the Mimbres Culture Heritage Site. Thanks to our volunteers, Chris DeBolt, our friends and donators, and a grant from Feeport-McMoRan, we have reached our goal. Thank you to all for your help and support. We, the members of the Imogen F Wilson Education Foundation will keep you informed when we begin the work and throughout the process. WE DID IT! 4th Graders at MCHS; a Poem by Marilyn Markel

4th Graders came to the Mimbres Culture Heritage Site
The weather was nice, the sun shining bright
The kids arrived on the buses, they poured out the door
There must have been sixty students, maybe a few more
They all talked at once, the air full of chatter
So many students, they made such a loud clatter
A whistle was blown, they made a little less noise
We hoped that they'd all be good girls and good boys
I told the kids about the Heritage Site—I gave them the scoop
Then introduced the volunteers—our fabulous, amazing, incredible group
Ms. Gendron, Ms. Pafford, Ms. DeBolt, and Kathy Hill
Misters Meredith, Reeves, Conlin, W. Hudson (we call him Bill)
We were prepared, we were ready, to give the students our best
And at the end of the day we'd all earned a well-deserved rest
The students were great, they enjoyed the long day
They liked all the activities and had lots to say
The river, the museum, the ruin, and more
They went back to school knowing much, much more than before
Thanks, everyone, for supporting the education we do
And a big "Thank You" to volunteers, we couldn't do it without you.

Conejo Mimbrenño Visits Pecos National Historical Park

The fifteenth in our series highlighting New Mexico National Parks and Monuments

By Marilyn Markel

Sponsored by the Grant County Archaeological Society

Pecos National Historical Park is located southeast of Santa Fe near the Pecos River and Glorieta pass. At first, Pecos Pueblo was a dozen rock-and-mud villages. The large pueblo was built in the AD 1200s to 1300s when the small pueblos joined together. Within 300 or so years Pecos Pueblo had grown to have 2,000 people in a 5-story complex. By the 1400s, Pecos became a thriving center of trade, trading buffalo meat, hides and other goods from the eastern plains to other pueblos and to the Apache.

The lives of the Pecos Indians were profoundly affected by the coming of the Spaniards into New Mexico. The Europeans brought a new religion, built churches, enslaved and persecuted the Indians. Diseases, especially small-pox, decimated the population. The last of the Pecos people left the site in 1838 and joined their relatives at Jemez Pueblo. Their descendants still live at Jemez today. Archaeologist Alfred Kidder excavated at Pecos in the early 1900s (1915-1921). Mimbres Archaeologists Hattie and Burt Cosgrove studied archeology with Kidder and were often visited by the Kidders while working on the Swartz Ruin and other sites in the Mimbres.
