

THE BLACK RANGE.

Friday, May 18, 1883.

PUBLISHED BY THE Black Range Printing Company.

It is finally determined that Albuquerque shall have water works, and arrangements have been made with a St. Louis company to go ahead with the work.

The Northern Pacific railroad is finished to the Pacific coast and travelers to Oregon have a much less arduous journey henceforth. The first through ticket from St. Paul to Portland was sold on the 9th of May.

Albuquerque hopes to be the legal county seat of Bernalillo county after this week. The vote on the matter was taken on the 15th. It ought to be the capitol of its own county anyhow, however, the vote may go.

The coffee crop of Costa Rica was short last year and as a consequence the importations are falling off. The inevitable result of this is to make prices higher. This is therefore a good time to swear off this useless habit. Stop drinking coffee and wear better clothes and more jewelry.

The Wells, Fargo express company will transport ore specimens to the Santa Fe tertio-millennial exhibition weighing less than twenty pounds free. The will also return charges upon specimens weighing less than one hundred pounds, if left for permanent exhibition.

Old Mexico's government does not seem to differ much from that of the United States even in the matter of dealing with the Indians. General Garcia has been so successful in killing Indians that, it is authoritatively stated, he is to be removed from the command of the Mexican troops in the field. What ever is done the Indians must not be killed, it appears.

If Elliott, whom Jere Dunn killed in Chicago last fall, had been a respectable citizen and honest man and his murderer likewise, the trial of the latter would have attracted little attention. But since both were thieves, jailbirds and desperadoes, the trial in synopsis is reported each day in the associated press dispatches. News matter must be scarce.

Attorney-General Brewster was not allowed to speak before the star route judge and the trial was much shortened thereby. Bliss for the prosecution spoke continuously for but little more than a week. Colonel Ingersoll said that he was much surprised at Bliss's sudden stop; said he had been coming down for a week to hear him close and as he had run on without end from day to day he had concluded that the end was lost.

The sad duty devolves upon the press of the country to chronicle that the Hunapai Indians of Arizona are rapidly succumbing to hunger and small-pox. The news breaks the poor editors all up. Most of them know what "hunger" signifies and he regrets that the penurious Hunapai is taking himself from earth by that path, but inasmuch as the said editor has not had the small pox very often, his measure of regret is shortened on this count. The dispatches state that the government is on hand with vaccine to administer to the savage wants, but no mention is made of grub. The government manifests a wisdom here which it is seldom guilty of. The only fault is that the quiet Hunapai is the victim instead of the Apache. It is as curious what a proneness the harmless Indian has for death in all forms as it is what a charmed life the hostile Indian possesses not even being subject to the demands of old age. It is but poor consolation to the frontier citizen that while the Apache is flaxing Crook and his soldiers about, the Hunapai is starving to death on vaccine. Yet it is the best the newspaper can give.

The Standard Oil Company's works at Jersey City were struck by lightning on the 10th instant and entirely destroyed by fire. Several lives were lost and property consumed to the amount of $1,500,000. The RANGE has but an imperfect idea of that something which is infrequently designated as Providence but still it is forced to sometimes admit the intelligent hand of an unknown quantity in occurrences of this character. This oil company has for a number of years been a monopoly in comparison with which railroads and telegraph lines have hid their heads in shame. It has had control practically of the oil of the United States and it regulated prices to suit its proud self. So thoroughly had it wound its coils about the public that this weakling could do no more than kick. Relief if it was to come must be from the outside. It came as a streak of lightning and the Standard Oil company succumbed. With this corporation thus weakened there is an opportunity to break the bands which encircle us but it is hardly likely that the opportunity will be embraced. The people can only give thanks that this set of robbers has been in turn robbed of a portion of its plunder.

To the person who is struggling along on life's pathway, with eyes glaring and hands outstretched to either side eager to secure the dollars and cents afforded to the last penny, it appears that if wealth could only be gained happiness would perch like a white dove always above the chamber door. To the poor, money seems to be everything—health and happiness—and notwithstanding that observation teaches to the contrary, it is hard for them to believe its lessons. These reflections are suggested by the intelligence lately sent broadcast throughout the land that Mrs. Theresa Fair has been granted a divorce from J. G. Fair and given the custody of the three younger children while the latter has the eldest boy. Mrs. Fair was given an alimony $4,250,000 in money and U. S. bonds and the family residence in San Francisco. While such pieces of news are becoming almost too common to merit comment yet each additional one increases the wonder and inextricably tangles the understanding why such things are. Here appears, as has so often come, in the case of Tabor et al, a couple who have walked side by side if not hand in hand through many years of life. They endured if they did not enjoy each others society while a family of children grew up between and around them, and the world was not apprised of any disaffection. It was only when they became wealthy that they found each other undurable and chose to separate. It cannot be claimed that we notice the troubles of the wealthy because we hear more about them, as an entire solution, because these divorces do not appear until wealth has arrived. It seems more as if when the common enemy, poverty, is to be fought, man and wife have no time to disagree beyond the possibility of reconciliation and it is only when the common enemy is vanquished that opportunity is offered to bring the war into the family sanctuary. This should be a warning to all to be beware of riches. Let the RANGE warn its readers that wealth means sorrow and tears, trials and tribulations, and herein can they find consolation for their present hard-up condition. As the RANGE does.

A company has just been organized in Santa Fe, calling itself the New Mexican Investment and Mining company, which, according to the local paper, has undertaken the biggest job that any single corporation has yet essayed since the world began. Its object as stated by the daily New Mexican is as follows: "Systematic prospecting can not fail to bring millions upon millions of vastly rich mineral to notice in New Mexico, which is as yet unknown, or at best but guessed at. Insufficient money is a vast draw back to a successful pursuit of the business. A mine, however good it may be, is but a white elephant unless the owner has sufficient money to develop and operate it. It is the object of the above company to supply the want."

We who live in a mining country have cause for rejoicing at this final solution of all our difficulties. Here are plenty of prospects whose only want is money to push development work and now a company has sprung up which proposes to fill all requirements. The New Mexican says that it is the only company ever organized for this purpose and that it will operate in all parts of the territory. The article leads the reader to suppose, also, that the company is a charitable institution operating solely for the good of the territory and the assistance of the struggling prospector. This being the case, it will of course make little or no discrimination as to prospects or prospectors, provided they are not shown to be entirely unworthy of confidence or assistance. The cash capital of the New Mexican Investment and Mining company is not given, but it must be large, if it has a comprehensive idea of the task it has chosen to perform. Here, in the north end of the Black range alone, are five mining districts each with probably one thousand prospects on which to work. At a fair calculation $25,000, some more and some less, judiciously expended would prove the value of each of these properties. An outlay of $125,000,000 would make a grand region of these five districts, and there is little doubt that New Mexico and the owners of the claims would be greatly benefited by it. Don't delay philanthropists but send your cash right along or if you choose come and bring it. The country is ripe for you and new discoveries will be made on hand for you by the time you have proved those now shown.

Does the editor of the New Mexican know how imbecile a bundle of sentences was permitted to occupy three-fourths of a column of last Friday's issue of his paper? The idea of this being the first company ever organized for prospect work. Indeed! How many companies are there now operating in New Mexico of any other character? Can he tell? Those companies that are now systematically mining in this territory began as prospectors, and even those are comparatively few. Don't make such breaks often Mr. Bartow or all the vainglorious assertions of worth that your paper will hold will prove insufficient to make the reader believe that the New Mexican is intelligently conducted. The fact is, that if the New Mexican Improvement and Mining company thoroughly prospects and makes a mine of one location it has then done all that any reasonable person can demand. If it tries to do more it will fall in all.

WITTICISMS.

The theatrical manager is known by the company he keeps.

London Truth tells of a sculptor who had to make the limbs of all his Venuses remarkably thin because his wife was very jealous.

It has often been charged that the Indians are lazy, and it may be so, but they manage to keep the United States troops pretty busy.

"What's a kiss? Simply this—
Four lips meet, two hearts greet:
Sass Deceit, union sweet!
Rapture bliss!—That's a kiss."

The following advertisement actually appeared in a western newspaper: "Lost! One vitel calf. His two hind legs most black. He was a she calf. Who brings him back pays five dollars."

Why will men who put up fire-escapes be rewarded by heaven.—Ex. We don't know; but we do know that men who don't put fire-escapes up will be rewarded in another place.

An Iowa editor has been asked by a correspondent for an answer to the question, "Do hogs pay?" On looking over his books he finds that they do not.

"Come, go to bed, Eddie," said an anxious aunt; "you see the sun has set, and the little chickens all go to roost at that time." "Yes, auntie," said Edwin; "but the old hen goes with them."

It is not believed that there is an artist in the world who can catch the expression of a woman's face as she puts her nose into the milk jug and finds that thunder has soured the contents.

"Why do good little children go to heaven when they die?" asked the teacher. Because it's unsafe to trust children in a place where there's fire," answered the bright little boy at the head of the class.

It is rumored that Henry Irving, the English actor, is soon to be knighted by the Queen. America is ahead of England in this respect. We have in this country quite a number of benighted actors. But we are not proud of 'em.

A small boy of four summers was riding a hobby horse with a companion. He was seated rather uncomfortably on the horse's neck. After a reflective pause, he said, "I think if one of us get off I could ride much better."

Sheridan, in one of his little gems, says: "A woman is in love when her heaving bosom sighs for you." That won't do. How the deuce a fellow is to tell when her heaving bosom is the size for him? is what we want to know.

Every time we happen to think of it we always feel glad we are not an ancient Roman. The clothes seem to be airy enough and they appear to fit easily, but it must have been trying to be compelled to talk in blank verse all the time.

You must cultivate decision of character, and learn to say "No," said a father to his son. Soon afterward when the father told the son to chop wood, the boy said "No," with an emphasis that showed a remembrance of the lesson.

A New York doctor has been figuring for the last twenty years and has reached the conclusion that very small feet on a woman mean a temper like cayenne pepper and a tongue which will lie about its best friends. This is a noble effort to console women with big feet, but it won't work.

A Baltimore gentleman writes that he knows a young man who addressed a girl by letter asking her to be his'n and she answered on a postal card declining the honor; whereupon he placed a one-cent stamp and her address on the back of her photograph and returned it by mail. He was shockingly ungallant; still it was tit for tat.

A Massachusetts lady rolled off a lounge while drunk. Her face struck in a basin, and was wedged so snugly that she, being unconscious, lay and smothered to death. The reckless carelessness with which basins are left about the happy homes of New England has long been a matter of comment. It is likely that Governor Butler, when he reads of this accident, will prohibit basins in Massachusetts.

A green girl from the country who has been visiting the city for the first time, attended a ball the other evening, and while at the supper a nobby swell approached her and taking her programme, said: "Ah, Miss Jennie, are you full?" "No, sir, not yet. I've only et four dishes of ice cream, two pieces of cake, three bananas, two oranges, six sandwiches, a sardine or two, and a half dozen slices of tongue but if you'll get me a hunk of pie, think that will do the business."

In this country nobility don't go for much under the hammer. There is an Italian Count acting as chambermaid in a Chicago livery stable, a German Duke slinging beer over a bar on the South Side, a French aspirant to royalty sticking bugs at one of the packing houses, and an English Lord pulling the string to an elevator in a third-class hay press. The inducements for foreign blood to emigrate to America can readily be seen. Here every tub stands on its own bottom, and all the real royal blood we have is in Jersey heifers and South Down sheep. We recognize royalty "Kings" and "queens" on picture cards, but they don't amount to as much as four one spots in a "jackson pot."

BLACK RANGE NEWSPAPER.

THE Black Range Newspaper

Is published in what is conceded to be one of the very richest mining regions of the world, and likewise in a country unsurpassed for stock raising. Consequently it is devoted exclusively to Mining and Stock Raising Interests.

It is a local paper, making no pretensions to widespread influence nor the controlling of national affairs. It is sufficient for the BLACK RANGE if it so succeeds in setting forth the advantages and wealth of western Socorro county, that capital may be induced to come hither and open up the rich prospects which have been discovered. The Black Range is new. Prospects for Mines of Gold, Silver, Copper, Lead and Iron

Such as no country has ever surpassed, abound upon the surface from one end of the range to the other, and as far as work has opened the ledges the indications have been bettered, but development capital comes forward slowly and little can be done without it. The range has abundant grass and water, and live stock to eat the one and drink the other are fast coming in. To advertise the above facts and at the same time earn something more than livelihood from this institution is the aim of the BLACK RANGE newspaper.

ADVERTISERS

Who wish to reach a mining community will notice that the support of this paper is at present almost entirely of that class and that it has no competition nearer than fifty miles; that intends to represent the four bright, lively towns of Chloride, Grafton, Fairview and Robinson, and has a fair circulation. Rates will be made known upon application. Subscription price printed at the head of the second page.
